

Getting on The Inside

The outward appearance of tailor-made clothing is usually good. That depends on the tailor—but it's the inside that should be taken into consideration. Pretty near time to think about that Fall Suit, isn't it? Not quite so busy now as we will be later on; have more time to be sure everything is perfect. Drop in and examine the fall suitings.

IDOLIZED BY HIS PEOPLE.

Oom Paul the Man of the Hour and Unique Figure in History.

Paul Kruger, president of the South African Republic, is the man of the hour, and his ultimatum to haughty England will force that great nation to back down or into war with the sturdy little Transvaal, numbering less than 75,000 Boers. Oom Paul, as everybody calls him, is a unique figure in history. Bismarck called him the greatest natural diplomat he had ever met. Although a dictator he lives in Democratic simplicity in his own house in Pretoria. He rises at break of day, and after his cup of coffee and daily Bible reading, steps out upon the porch to greet his regular morning audience, which begins to accumulate before sun up. He goes to the government buildings at 9, attended by a bodyguard of six armed policemen. Returning at 4, he sits on the veranda, smoking his old wooden pipe. That pipe short of evil smelling, is Kruger's inseparable companion, and in it he invariably smokes the common weed of the Transvaal. His diet is of the simplest kind. His only beverage is coffee, and of this he drinks a great deal. He is no great meat eater, but prefers the product of the fields. "When I am thirsty I drink coffee and smoke; when I am thinking I smoke and drink coffee," he says.
When he left the Transvaal for his first visit to London he wore the regulation garb of the South African farmer, a low-crowned hat, short jacket and shoes of untanned leather. Upon his return he astonished his people by appearing in a high hat, long black frock coat and patent leather shoes. He has worn this garb ever since. His religious creed is simple, but simple. Whatever God sends is right and must be endured without a murmur.
In 1894 there was a locust plague in the Transvaal. He would not let them be destroyed. If a crime is committed Oom Paul sends for the chief of police. If it is murder Kruger allows the police five days to capture the murderer; three days to find a horse thief, and one day to apprehend a petty offender. If the police fail to bring the offenders in these given periods Kruger tells them he has no use for them, and they need not return.
Many stories are told of his physical strength. In young manhood he saved his sister's life by strangling a panther, and held a mad buffalo's head under water until the animal drowned. He twice amputated his own finger after having met with an accident, once he carried a burro home for a Boer who couldn't get the animal to go with him. He refuses to talk English. He is the hero of the Transvaal, and a picturesque character in every way.
All American soldiers who fought in the Mexican war are entitled to pension, but only 9204 remain on the list. The entire pension list decreased several thousand last year. But one veteran of 1812 survives, and he is 99.

LOCAL LINES.

Mrs. Stewart and Williamson yesterday extracted a piece of steel from the breast of Wm. Eytts, a blacksmith who had carried the steel for over a year in his body. It became imbedded there at Cairo.

—Mr. J. Lawrence Allsbrook, aged 83, died near Smithland of general debility Monday.

—Mrs. J. S. Scott, of Tennessee street, complained to officer Smith yesterday afternoon that a man whom she had given a meal returned and stole her pocket book containing a small sum of money. The man could not be found.

—The Illinois Central has one of the largest air compressors in the state. It keeps a supply of air for use in all the shops here.

—Mr. Jerry Richards, aged 83, died at his home in Livingston county, on the Ohio river, a day or two ago, leaving a wife and several children. He was a pioneer farmer.

—Messrs. Breckenridge and Pettit came in from Murray last night and went to Mayfield this morning to speak.

—The Goebellies defeated in yesterday's Democratic primary should get "he boots" to tell them what did it. There was a screw loose somewhere no doubt.

—What a vote was cast in yesterday's primary. Less than 900 at the outset in a town with 2000 Democratic voters.

—Michael Haffey, who has been ill at the city hospital for sometime past, is reported better by Steward McKinney.

—Mrs. Malone, mother of one of the La Belle managers, who was bitten by a bear, is reported not so well today.

—Will Terry, colored, aged 43 years, died yesterday at his home, 1125 Flour street, of jaundice. He was a shoemaker and was well known. The funeral took place this morning at 10 o'clock under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. The interment was at Oak Grove cemetery.

—All members of Western Kentucky Lodge No. 2831 are requested to meet at Oak Grove Hall tonight as Bro. Harry Short is dead.

—Mr. Dufoir, who suffered yesterday by the fire at the Rike farm, lost very near all of his household goods and clothing. He had $300 insurance on his effects. The owner of the property is out of the city and Mr. Dufoir will await his return before deciding what to do. He is occupying temporarily a small house on the place, desiring to be near his crops.

—One of the amusing things reported by the election officers is that Capt. J. R. Smith, a life long Republican, yesterday received one vote for school trustee, in the Democratic primary on the South side of the court house. Capt. Smith doubtless appreciates the honor, although he was not running on that ticket.

—There has been much talk on the streets today about an unseen hand getting in its work in yesterday's primary. In some quarters it was freely said that some of the defeated went down under the skilled man-over-riding of some other person who had an ax to grind. That will tell and then the people may arise and do the beheading act another time.

—The new council will get in office in time to give the city one more chance to get into the second class of cities. Will the board do this much for the city?

—The heated spell is certainly causing much sickness among the people. They should be very cautious of the sun, ice drinks and over eating of garden truck.

—The Mechanicsburg M. E. Sunday school will go to the lower Cold Springs tomorrow for a picnic and outing.

—Either Chapter No. 21, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold their stated meeting at 7:30 o'clock in Masonic Hall. All members requested to be present.

LOST—Somewhere on Washington street near Biederman's grocery, or on Washington, Fourth or Court street coming down into the city, a solid gold watch, closed case, without watch chain, having a picture in the case. Liberal reward will be paid for return of the watch to this office. 68
